ANALYSIS

CATALYST / TODAY'S DRIVER

Current move appears to be sector rotation into defensive utilities amid mixed market regime, with volume 3x average on minimal price change suggesting institutional repositioning. Forward catalyst is Q3 earnings on October 30, though utility earnings rarely serve as material re-rating events absent regulatory decisions or rate-case approvals.

BREAKOUT SIGNAL

Close above $57.79 on vol >299% of 20d avg

ANALYSIS

Negative 12-week RS vs SPY (-2.4), RS line not at new high, and a wide base (2.75 ATR) disqualify this from breakout-grade treatment despite proximity to 52W high. Volume surge on flat price in a defensive utility suggests institutional block repositioning rather than momentum initiation - this is sector rotation noise, not a leadership setup. Conviction: Low.
