ANALYSIS

CATALYST / TODAY'S DRIVER

Technical compression creating a textbook coil (base_tight 1.13) near 52W highs, suggesting institutional accumulation ahead of Q4 earnings on January 13. Forward catalyst: Q4 earnings in 90 days, which historically has served as a re-rating opportunity for regional banks showing net interest margin expansion.

ANALYSIS

The setup exhibits a textbook VCP coil (base_tight 1.13) at 90.7% of 52W high with 2.29x volume, but the critical disconfirming evidence is devastating: RS vs SPY is -9.1, indicating this is a relative laggard, not a leader. RS line is NOT at new high, and the stock is below its 50MA despite being near 52W price highs-a divergence that signals distribution, not accumulation. In a Risk-On regime favoring mega caps, a financials name with negative 3-month RS (-4.8) and no insider buying faces severe headwinds. Float of 184.3M exceeds the 150M filter threshold. The tight base reflects low volatility in a dead sector, not institutional conviction. Conviction: Low
