| Current move driven by strong momentum into earnings on September 8 (15 days out), with the market positioning ahead of a potential beat-and-raise quarter. Forward catalyst is the Sep 8 earnings print itself - high conviction that Braze will beat consensus and guide up given strength in enterprise customer engagement spend and AI-powered personalization tailwinds.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |

| Core exposure to AI-powered marketing tech and SaaS enterprise software spending. The shift to personalized, data-driven customer engagement is a secular tailwind accelerating as enterprises invest in retention and LTV optimization. Theme momentum is strong - martech budgets are rebounding and AI feature adoption is driving seat expansion and upsell.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                     |

| Volume surge to 2.64x average on today's move into the breakout zone signals institutional pre-positioning ahead of the Sep 8 print. No insider buying in the last 90 days, but the tight base structure and volume profile suggest smart money is quietly accumulating before what the street expects to be a strong quarter. Float rotation dynamics are favorable given the $3.5B market cap and 92M float - enough liquidity for growth funds but still small enough for meaningful alpha.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |

| Earnings on September 8, 2026. Consensus expects continued revenue acceleration and improved path to profitability as the company scales. Braze has a history of beating revenue estimates as large enterprise deals close late in quarters. The setup into this print is textbook - coiling base, rising RS, and volume picking up exactly two weeks before the event.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                              |

| Strongest disconfirming evidence: RS line is NOT at new high, which is Qullamaggie's #1 early leadership signal - this stock is in momentum but not yet a confirmed market leader. The base is also wider than ideal (2.55 vs. <2.0 target), and the stock is still 16% below its 52W high, meaning it's not in true breakout territory yet. However, the 2.64x volume surge, +21.6 RS vs SPY, and the live forward catalyst (earnings in 15 days with high beat probability) make this a strong follow-through candidate. Technology sector tailwind (+2.2% vs SPY this week) adds half a grade of support. The risk is that this is late-cycle positioning into an event - if the print disappoints, the unwind will be swift. Conviction: Medium. |
